Huskies lose pair, Ontario championship

After gaining a three game to two edge, the Haliburton Midget Huskies have lost the All Ontario Championship in a pair of games Saturday and Sunday in the southwestern Ontario town of Wheatly. The Huskies were defeated Saturday 4-1 and lost Sunday afternoon by a 7-4 margin.

The scene for the final two games of the play-off was set April 11 in Haliburton, when the Huskies edged the visitors 3-2. The fast paced victory gave the team a three game advantage in the best of seven play-off as the action shifted to the Wheatly arena.

The lead was not enough to overcome the hometown advantage, even though Haliburton appeared to be buoyed by their win a week earlier. The Huskies struck early in the Saturday night's game, scoring just one minute and two seconds into the opening frame. Drew Mitchell was the marksman for the Huskies with Ron Perrin and Tom MacLeod getting the assists. The Huskies held onto the one goal edge until the close of the first frame when Wheatly scored.

That goal may have broken the Huskies' momentum, or it may have been the spark the host team needed. Whatever the case, the Wheatly team pumped in three more goals during the second period to secure Wheatly goalie Neil Dundas dives for the puck as Huskies attackers Chris Lanigan (4) and an unidentified Haliburton player in the dark sweater, attempt to beat the Wheatly defenseman to the puck. The action was part of the fifth game of the All Ontario Midget 'C' championship played April 11 at the Haliburton arena. The Huskies won that contest 3-2, but were defeated in the final two games Saturday and Sunday in Wheatly.

Candidate suggests Ontario Place should be sold for $110 million

The provincial government should sell its interest in Ontario Place and use the proceeds to establish similar attractions in six locations throughout the province. That is a proposal to be announced Tuesday by Victoria-Haliburton Progressive Conservative candidate Art Ward. The Haliburton resident will unveil his plan at press conferences in Toronto, Peterborough and Omeme.

Ward estimates that the sale of the Ontario Place amusement and entertainment centre on the Toronto waterfront would generate some $110 million which then could be used with matching private funds, to create similar attractions in a variety of locations in Ontario. Among the centres he suggests would be suitable for the developments are Omeme, Brockville, Sarnia, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and Thunder Bay.

In an interview last week, the PC candidate pointed out that five of the sites could take advantage of a waterfront setting, similar to the Toronto location. The sixth, located in Omeme, he suggest could capitalize on the rural or agricultural theme to provide a specific "flavour" or ambience.

"The Omeme location is close to the lakeshore market," Ward noted, "is conveniently located between two larger centres (Lindsay and Peterborough) and the area has a long tradition of agriculture." He suggested the Omeme location could become a "Nashville north" referring to the United States city best known as the home of country and western music.

Ploughing match

Ward also pointed out that in the past few years, it has been suggested that the International Ploughing Match have a permanent location. He said the annual event could be a part of the Omeme development.

By establishing a number of centres throughout the province, Ward said the province would be responding to the findings of recent research which indicated a growing interest in the United States in touring holidays. "People are interested in seeing different things, of travelling and visiting different areas," he commented. "By locating these centres throughout the province, we could provide a circuit for them to travel."

Having six locations would also facilitate the booking of entertainment, shows and displays, Ward noted. Entertainers would be easier to book if the contract included appearances in six locations, or more. He suggested the displays and other changeable features of the centres could also be moved from one location to another.

Six features

The proposal suggests that the successful features of the Ontario Place attraction be retained at the six new sites. These include The Forum entertainment centre, the Cinesphere big screen motion picture theatre, display areas for moveable exhibits, a children's play area, two restaurants and, where feasible, a marina.

Ward was a director of the Ontario Place Corporation from 1983 to 1986.

He noted that the main local market for Ontario Place is within 25 miles of the facility. He believes the other locations could also provide the base for the success of each operation.

Ward noted that Ontario Place attracts an average of two million visitors a year. He said the province currently subsidized the operation of the attraction by approximately $1.50 per entrance.

He suggested the operation of the attraction needed an injection of fresh ideas and promotion. He said that this was not available under the present system. "There's too much interference from the bureaucracy," he commented.

Ward said that he is aware of interest from the private sector in Ontario Place. He said the selling price of $110 million was reached after discussion with Toronto realtors and as a result of his experience on the board of directors. He suggested that the facility might be an attractive buy for such organizations as the Taft Corporation, operators of Canada's Wonderland, the Disney Corporation or other international amusement park companies.

The candidate noted that Ontario Place has been instrumental in the development of the Toronto lakefront since its inception in 1971. As well, the facility provided a vehicle for the development of the IMAX film system used in the Cinesphere.

He suggested however, that restrictions should be placed on the development of residential or office space with any of the new centres, including Ontario Place.

In conclusion, Ward described his proposal as, "...a practical creative answer to the problems that beset this Crown Corporation and its neglect by the current coalition in power in Queen's park."

Mushers will race for $10,000 in 1988 derby

The purse for the 1988 Minden Sled Dog Derby will be doubled, according to an announcement from the organizing committee.

Val Lougheed, race co-ordinator, announced last week that the sponsoring company, Martin Pet Foods, has agreed to double the total prize for the 1988 race. The purse for the event will be $10,000.00.

The commitment came following discussions earlier this month in Elmira, where the head office of Martin Pet Foods is located. "Company officials were extremely pleased with this year's event and were quick to add their endorsement to another race," the co-ordinator stated. "The organizing committee is delighted with this endorsement by Martin Pet Foods and with indications that the company is looking at the Minden race as a long-term commitment."

In addition to increasing the purse from $5,000 to $10,000, the sponsor will contribute $5,000.00 for administration and promotion of the race. "These additional funds will be used for advertising, so we can attract more people to Minden for this event," Lougheed said. "Sled dog racing is a sport that is starting to catch the attention of the public. I think our efforts in Minden over the past three years have been a part of that growing awareness and we're glad our sponsor has agreed to continue support for this race." She noted the $10,000 purse will make the Minden Sled Dog Derby one of the five largest in Canada.

The size of the purse will also ensure that the Minden event attracts the top drivers in North America. "This past January we had world class racers here," Lougheed said. "I think the quality of the drivers at the 1988 race will be even higher with the additional funds on the line."

the victory.

There was no scoring in the third period.

Sunday afternoon, Wheatly once again gained an advantage from the home turf, scoring the game's first goal in the opening period and adding another in the second before the Huskies responded.

John Wells put the Haliburton team back in the game with a goal midway through the middle period. Ted Paish got the assist on that effort. However, before the buzzer sounded to end the period, Wheatly had scored three more goals, giving them a 5-1 edge heading into the last frame of the season.

The Huskies made a valiant effort to erase the Wheatly advantage. Drew Mitchell scored from Scott Nesbitt while Scott Russell connected on a pass from Ron Perrin. However, the Haliburton team was unable to hold back the Wheatly attack. The hosts erased the markers with a pair of quick goals.

The final goal of the game, the series and the season was scored by John Vanderhorst of the Huskies who connected on a pass from Tom MacLeod and Jeff Popple with 3:46 remaining in the contest.

Midget coach Bob Wells, described the two games in Wheatly as examples of excellent hockey. He said both teams, "...put out one heck of an effort." Wells noted that the series went seven games, a good indication of the quality of hockey from both teams.

"The boys played their hearts out," Wells commented, "but they just came up short. I think we outplayed Wheatly in the final contest, but we just couldn't find the marker."

The two games in Wheatly drew over 500 fans to the local arena, including a contingent of about 60 supporters who travelled from the county to back the local team in the play-off.

Federal riding will lose 1 township and gain two

The report of the Federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario was presented to the House of Commons April 7.

The first proposals of the commission were released on August 29, 1986. Public hearings were held in eight cities across Ontario in November and December. The report presented today revised the original proposals as a consequence of representations at these hearings.

Amendments to the law enacted in March 1986 allot Ontario 99 electoral districts, up from the present 95. Districts would be added in six areas: Brampton, Mississauga, Halton Region, York Region and Ottawa-Carleton Region. Districts would be removed from two areas: the City of Toronto and the area of Bruce, Grey and Wellington counties. Only five of the existing ninety-five districts would remain unchanged under the revised proposals.

The revisions in the report affect 67 of the 99 districts first proposed, but do not change the proposed allocation of seats among the various regions of the province.

The present Victoria-Haliburton would lose the Township of Georgina while gaining the townships of Manvers and Cavan from the present Durham-Northerland (re-named Durham). The revised Durham would gain the township of Uxbridge plus northern parts of Whitby and Oshawa. The southerly urban portion of the City of Oshawa would form the revised Oshawa. The revised Ontario would contain the towns of Ajax and Pickering and the southerly portion of the Town of Whirby.

Members of the House of Commons now have thirty days to file objections to the revised proposals. Objections will be considered in a committee of the House of Commons. The minutes of the proceedings of the committee are returned to the Commission, which then has thirty days to consider these objections and return a final report.

The districts as drawn in the final report become law automatically, without further review in Parliament. The new districts will take effect upon the first dissolution of Parliament occurring more than one year after the proclamation of the new districts. The existing districts continue in force until that time.

Midgets carried fifth game 3-2

The Huskies came out strongly in game five of the playoff April 11 at the Haliburton arena.

Before an enthusiastic crowd, they chalked up three goals before Wheatley managed to get on the scoreboard. Scott Nesbitt started the scoring for the Huskies at the 11:05 mark of the opening frame. He connected on a pass from Scott Russell. The second goal of the opening period was scored by Russell, assists going to Drew Mitchell and Chris Lanigan. The goal came at the 5:59 mark.

It looked as if the Huskies would also have the second period to themselves as well. Ron Perrin scored from John Vanderhorst at the 8:46 mark. The Huskies controlled the play until the last minute of the period when Travis McKeen connected for Wheatley with just 23 seconds left to play.

The teams battled it out during the third frame, with plenty of end to end rushes, but the Huskies, managed to hold on to the lead. However, at 3:48, Wheatley came within striking distance when Jim Hodgson scored for the visitors.

In the final minute of play, Wheatley pulled their goalie in favour of the extra forward, but were unable to beat the spectacular play of Huskies' Scott Burke.

The games ended with a Haliburton 3-2 victory, giving the teams the edge for the final games in Wheatley.

The fight against cancer starts right here

April is Cancer Month in Canada. That means that for these 31 days the Canadian Cancer Society will be soliciting donations for the wide range of activities they support in the fight against the dreaded killer.

In Minden, Nadene Campbell has been in charge of the Cancer Society's fund drive for the last six years. Every April she organizes groups of volunteers - this year there are 20 - to canvass door to door for donations.

This year the Cancer Society hopes to raise $18,300,000 in Ontario and Nadene says the Minden volunteers will have to do all they can to meet their quota. The target for the whole of Canada is $36 million.

Money raised by the society will be spent both on local projects and on larger national schemes.

"The society does a great many things with the funds," says Nadene. "A lot is spent on cancer research and on grants for studies. Some goes on public education, one of the most important ways of teaching people how to avoid contracting the disease."

She explains that a large part of the money goes on projects aimed at helping and supporting local people with cancer. "If a cancer patient needs a ride to the hospital, we find a driver and pay the gas bill. Any prosthetic limbs that may be required as a result of the disease, the society will contribute toward as well."

The society also organizes self-help groups for patients and their families and pays for some disease-related drugs where there is a financial need.

But more than half the money raised in the April fund drive will be spent on research into a cure for the disease.

Nadene believes the efforts of the Cancer Society are particularly significant in Haliburton County with its large population of seniors.

After all, cancer kills one in every four Canadians and the chances of contracting it increase with age.

Though no cure has yet dog competition will receive $2000.00 while the four dog champion will be awarded $1000.00. The remainder of the $10,000 purse will be shared among the racers in each division finishing fifteenth or better.

The 1987 Minden Sled Dog Derby, attracted over 80 teams from throughout Ontario, Quebec, the United States and even one team from British Columbia.

The 1988 race will be held January 9 and 10.

been discovered, scientists have learned a great deal about the disease and they have also considerably increased individual chances of beating it.

For instance, in the 1980's, one of every two people who come down with cancer will survive for at least five years. In the 1940's only one in every five cancer victims was alive five years after treatment began.

Cancer is a broad term for a number of diseases characterized by abnormal growth of body cells. When the abnormal cells multiply quickly to become tumours and spread to other parts of the body, the disease is often fatal.

This year, approximately 300,000 Canadians will undergo treatment for cancer.

Nadene explains that much of the Cancer Society's resources go on public education because it's much easier to prevent the disease than to stop it from getting worse once it's gained a foothold.

"Things such as teaching children not to smoke," she says, "are important aspects of the society's public education program. That's where you have to get people - when they're young and haven't started on cigarettes."

According to statistics, lung cancer - one of the most common and fatal forms of the disease - is related to smoking in 80 per cent of cases diagnosed.

The problem, says Nadene, is that people just don't know enough about cancer to protect themselves from it or to help others when they become ill with it. "It's like death - people don't want to talk about it."

Nadene believes that it would be a great step forward for Minden if the village could have its own branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. "That way, there would be a great deal more support for cancer victims and their families."

"At present, people just don't know what to expect and there's no one to tell them. When they go to hospital in Toronto, they don't know what they'll be told by doctors or where to stay if they're visiting a friend."

A Minden Cancer Society branch would go a long way to easing the burden for patients and families of patients with cancer, she says. And eventually, there is always the hope that dollars raised by a Minden Cancer Society branch would give the village a small stake in the cure.

Nadene Campbell is in charge of the Canadian Cancer Society's April fund drive in Minden. Please be generous if Nadene or one of her twenty volunteers approaches you for donations.

Charges dismissed

Charges under the Occupational Health and Safety Act against three employees of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications have been dismissed. The charges were dismissed by Judge F.D. White, after he agreed with defence counsel John Murray that the legal action against the three was not started soon enough after the incident occurred.

Ron Little, superintendent of the MTC Kinmount Patrol Yard, Donald MacDonald, the Bancroft District Engineer, and Donald Rutledge, the area patrol supervisor, had been charged with failing to supervise employees adequately on the worksite. The charges were laid after a 60 year old MTC employee, Douglas Brown of Irondale, drowned while trying to clear a clogged culvert on Highway 503. The incident occurred September 6, 1985.

The charges against the three were laid by the Ministry of Labour in May, 1986, some eight months after the incident occurred.

Defence attorney John Murray, speaking for his client, Ron Little, told the court that according to the Public Authorities Protection Act, any action against a public employee must be commenced within six months of the incident taking place.

The judge ruled that the provisions of the Public Authorities Protection Act took precedence over any other Act and dismissed the charges against the three.

The hearing was held April 10 in Minden.

A helping hand

Cancer. The word and the disease has been a cause of fear and mystery for years. The swiftness of the disease can overwhelm even the hardest in a very short time. Conversely, an individual can live for years, even decades, with the disease.

Much is being done to unravel the mysteries of cancer in its many forms. Research is being carried out on numerous fronts with the hope of finding a key to a control or cure for the disease.

The fight against cancer may seem to be a distant battle, but there is much that can be done locally. As noted in the article in this week's edition, education and early detection are two of the most powerful weapons in combatting cancer.

April is cancer month in Canada. It marks the central fund raising effort of the organization and it deserves the support of everyone. But perhaps, more importantly, the local society needs more volunteers to assist in its year round efforts of education and patient services. These important grass-roots volunteers help bring comfort to those afflicted with the disease as well as easing the burden family members and friends must bear.

Volunteers are also needed to help in the education component. By spreading the knowledge of how best to avoid cancer, and what to look for in diagnosing it, significant inroads in the fight against it can be made.

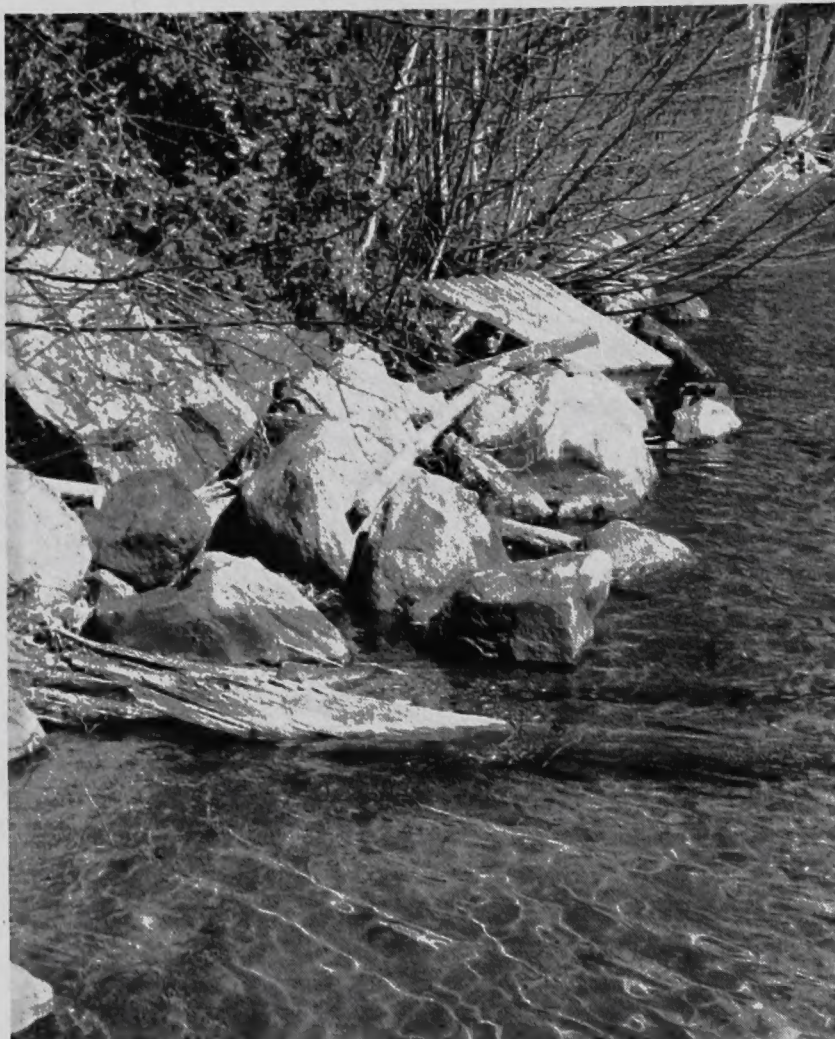

The current campaign deserves your financial support. The local society would also welcome your volunteer services on a year round basis.

A team effort

The Haliburton Midget Huskies may have lost the series in Wheatly this past weekend, but, throughout the play-off, they won a place in the hearts of just about everyone in this county. The team, which lost a best of seven All Ontario championship in the seventh and deciding game Sunday afternoon, was representative of the long and distinguished history of hockey in the Haliburton Highlands.

Drawing on talent from all areas of the county, the Huskies demonstrated the importance of a team effort, of working together toward a common goal.

They may not have come home with the provincial championship, but they have earned the admiration and respect of all those who followed their progress through the season and play-offs. Congratulations to every member of the team for an excellent season of fine hockey.

Open water

The nose knows

- by Arthur Black -

"Oh give me land, lots of land under starry skies above...don't fence me in." Popular song lyric.

"Don't bury me in this prairie, take me where the cement grows." Another popular song lyric.

In terms of the old question: which is better, urban or rural, I live a terrifically democratic life. Four days of the week I wake up in the country, with corn growers and dairy farmers for neighbours, cardinals flickering across my verandah and, one magical morning, a sloe-eyed, white-flecked fawn skittering awkwardly across my driveway like a little girl wearing her mother's high-heeled shoes.

For the other three days of the week, I gird up my loins, drive to the station and board a Via Rail train for the hour and a half trek to the Big Smoke, complete with superhighways, skyscrapers and an awful lot of people. In the city I see more human faces on one subway ride than I would meet in a month in the country. In the country I can watch arrowheads of Canada Geese flapping phlegmatically across the sky under the watchful gaze of a circling Red Tailed Hawk. In the city, I see great pregnant 747's waddling in from New York, Chicago and the coast under the watchful gaze of traffic helicopters.

I am not making a value judgement here. I enjoy both experiences — the urban and the rural. It's just that sometimes the crossover can leave a person just a touch...well...schizophrenic.

Now you take the question of smells. Each time I get to the city and wend my way out of the labyrinthine tunnels of the train station and onto the bustling, car-clogged streets, I get this very strong burning sensation in my nostrils. You know how it is when you drink a Coke too fast and it kind of backs up into your sinuses? It feels like that. There's a smell that goes with it too — a sharp and acrid odour that I don't recognize.

But when I mention this phenomenon to city dwellers they don't know what I'm talking about. They say their noses don't hurt and they don't smell a thing. The ominous aspect is, after I've been on a downtown city street for thirty seconds or so, the pain goes away and I can't smell anything odd either.

I guess this whole smell experience wouldn't be worth mentioning if it wasn't for what happened last weekend. I had a friend from the city visiting. Bright and early Saturday morning she came downstairs went out on the verandah, took a deep breath...

...and collapsed in a coughing fit.

"What the hell is that?" she gasped.

"What's what?" I asked.

"That SMELL!"

I took a whiff. Oh THAT smell. Why, it was just the farmer down on the next concession spreading manure on his fields. I took another judicious sniff, like a wine taster savouring the delicate bouquet of a fine Moselle. "Pig, I believe."

My green-faced guest looked at me with disbelieving eyes. "How can you stand it?" she muttered through clenched teeth.

Truth is, I never thought of it as an objectionable smell. The aroma of manure on the air has always been a welcome treat for me, signalling that winter is officially over, the cows are out of the barn and the ground is being prepared for the crops I'll be sinking my teeth into in just a few weeks time.

Not that I couldn't sympathize with my house guest. I remember the first time I drove through the northwestern Ontario town of Kenora a few years back. I wheeled into a gas station, jumped out of my car and all but doubled up by the gas pump. "What's that stink?" I croaked to the attendant. "Oh you mean the mill?" he asked.

Pulp and paper mill. You haven't known stench until you've smelled one of those little rosebuds in full flower.

I think perhaps the British writer John Galsworthy said it best. In a book called Georgian Grace he wrote: "Our forerunners had faculties that we have lost...they ignored the natural smell of sweat and dung and dirt, as we ignore the artificial smells of petrol fumes and industrial effluents."

I guess that's true. And I guess if the old saying "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder" holds any water, then it must also be true that stench is in the nostrils of the sniffer.

Take advantage of one of these fine spring evenings to walk along a quiet country roadside, just at dusk. If you pass close to a lightly wooded wet pasture, and if you are lucky, you may be treated to the dance of the timberdoodle — an unparalleled show of sound and motion.

The timberdoodle is really the American Woodcock, a common shorebird that has adapted to nesting amongst the trees. Its appearance and its habits, can only be termed eccentric. Squat and rotund, this pigeon-sized bird is ideally camouflaged in herringbone brown. But its short legs, combined with a slender three-inch bill and large bulging eyes set almost on top of the head, makes everything look out of proportion.

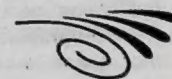

This top-heavy look has its purpose. Woodcock feed almost exclusively on earthworms, and while its long bill probes the soil, these curious eyes can scan the evening sky for any sign of danger. To find woodcock, look where worms are easy to find — moist, sandy soil, preferably with a scattering of bushes or aspen trees. Old wet pastures are especially good.

On a warm spring evening, a woodcock's main concern is proclaiming his territory and wooing his mate. The most audible evidence of this is a loud nasal-sounding "peent", repeated every 10-20 seconds. In a few moments, the woodcock will jump into the air, spiralling upward with a low twittering song.

If you look skyward, you can often see this strange songster silhouetted in the fading light. His careening course zig-zags across the sky, often hundreds of feet up. Suddenly the dance stops, and the timberdoodle plummets to the ground again, usually to within a few feet of the same spot.

Armed with a flashlight, you can use this homing tendency to claim a front row seat for the woodcock's dance. Each time the bird spirals skyward, quietly move in the darkness a few feet closer to his peenting ground. When he returns, freeze. At this stage, a flashlight beam focussed on the peenting bird seems to have little effect on its behaviour and you can watch its strutting and calling at leisure.

Hunters claim that the challenges of bagging a woodcock twisting through the trees is unsurpassed. But the challenge of stalking its spring dance instead brings the reward of knowing that the elusive timberdoodle remains to fly again.

Committee studies county government

- by John Eakins, MPP -

In Victoria-Haliburton, I have the pleasure of working with county councils in Haliburton and Victoria.

County governments perform important work and in recognition of their contribution, the provincial government has formed an advisory committee to study county governments in Ontario.

In making the announcement, my colleague, the Honourable Ben Grandmaitre, Minister of Municipal Affairs, said "County councils are a valuable institution in Ontario dating back more than a century. I expect them to continue into the next century. But we must look and see if this vital part of the political fabric of Ontario can be improved and made stronger to meet the challenges it will face in the future."

The advisory committee will be chaired by my friend and parliamentary assistant to the minister, Ray Haggerty, MPP for Erie. Mr. Haggerty and his committee will be consulting widely on this issue and will be submitting an interim report in the fall of this year.

The purpose of this review is to examine the representation and responsibility functions within the present county government system.

The committee will identify options and make recommendations based on the review for consideration by the minister. The overall goal is to ensure that county government remains a relevant and accountable system of local decisions making, for you, the local taxpayer.

The committee will be reviewing a number of subjects including: representation issues, functions and financial issues.

The minister has also directed the committee to look at such questions as whether Wardens should be elected annually, how big a county council should be, and whether town Mayors should continue to be excluded from county councils.

Mr. Grandmaitre has sent these terms of reference to all county councils and all local municipal councils in counties with a request for their comments.

Credit available only if you file

- by Bill Scott, MP -

If you weren't planning to file an income tax return this year because you had no taxable income to declare you may be missing out on a valuable tax credit, worth as much as $50 for you and even more if you are married or have children.

This credit, introduced in the February 1986 budget, is designed to provide a Federal Sales Tax refund to individuals and families with low net incomes.

In order to receive the credit, you must file a tax return for 1986, even if you don't have taxable income to declare. Schedule eleven must also be completed and submitted along with your tax return.

In order to determine, if you are eligible to receive the Federal Sales Tax Credit, complete a tax return up to line 224 - Net Income. If you are married, your spouse's net income should also be calculated. Then turn to schedule eleven in the tax return and complete it, following the instructions in the tax guide. Once you've completed this schedule, go back to the tax return, complete it, and sign it.

Generally speaking, individuals are eligible for the full $50 credit if their net income in 1986 was $15,000 or less.

The credit gradually diminishes as a person's net income increases above $15,000. When an individual claims the federal sales tax credit for a spouse and qualified relations, the amount of the credit increases, since a $50 credit may be claimed for a spouse and additional credits of $25 per qualified relation are also available.

As you complete your tax return, remember that a qualified relation is a child under 18 years of age as of December, 1986, for whom you or your spouse are the only individuals claiming a personal exemption. Only one claim for the federal sales tax credit may be made by a married couple, so you must decide which spouse will claim this credit.

If you're unsure of how to claim, call or visit your district taxation office where the staff will be pleased to assist you.

Spiralling housing prices

by Bill Kulas

Two weeks ago this paper's front page headline read, "Real Estate Boom Hits the Highlands," by John Greenwood.

According to a local real estate broker, property prices, especially lakefront cottages and homes have risen dramatically, as much as 40 per cent since 1985.

Quite a jump in value, but not nearly as dramatic as what is being experienced in Metro Toronto, where the median price for a home has increased by almost 40 per cent in the past year. In February of this year alone, the average home price in Metro increased by 7.6%. A home that was going for $115,000 last year is not fetching close to $160,000.

Wild expectations of ever increasing house prices are overtaking reality. In Southern Ontario people believe that house prices are not going to stop increasing. One thing is for sure, the price of building materials and labor costs are not going to come down.

As buyers south of us are gobbling up everything in sight, more and more sellers are deciding to hold their properties off the market in anticipation of higher prices down the road a ways. Certainly falling interest rates over the past few years coupled with provincial rent controls that have contributed toward a zero vacancy rate has left thousands of people with no other option than to buy.

Those individuals who are facing retirement in southern Ontario and who are deciding to sell their homes are finding that the price of homes in central and northern Ontario are a real bargain in comparison to their own market.

But don't you think there may well be an end to this housing bonanza? Some real estate experts say yes, while others disagree. Mark Twain once said, "Invest in land son, because they're not making any more of it."

What is reality is that even with the decline in interest rates, monthly mortgage payments for the average home buyer have risen significantly within the last year because the mortgages are bigger. Also, people's take-home pay cheques are not rising nearly as fast as the price of homes. Last year wage and salary increases averaged about 8% in Ontario.

At some point the average buyer will be over extending himself. That's when the boom will end! What do you think?

from the chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

I attended an informational meeting regarding the raising of money for the Haliburton Hospital. I went on behalf of the chamber, along with other business people and interested citizens. Before attending, I knew that the hospital project was certainly a very worthwhile endeavour, however, by the end of the meeting, I was truly moved by what had happened.

I realized for the first time that this was not a regular hospital addition. It is going to be a separate, but attached, facility that will offer "continuing care" to those who now must spend their time and perhaps the rest of their lives in hospital beds from our community.

What moved me most, was the coming together of all these various groups uniting for one good cause. People had different ideas and different projects that they were going to undertake, from small jars beside the cash registers at the check-outs, to ticket sales and other fund raising ideas. Each felt that this project needed to be successful.

I certainly believe in free enterprise and the capitalist system, I would not be in business if I didn't. But I also think that a society will be judged, not by how rich it was, or how wealthy it became, but how it treated those most in need. Centuries from now, when people look back, I'm sure they will look, not for what we spent on ourselves, but how we helped others.

This facility will allow our sons and daughters of this county to come home, to be close to their friends and relatives that may nourish them emotionally and spiritually.

Those people who need care in our county, can be cared for by the people here. Let's raise the funds and bring them home.

Keep grass and debris fires under control

Rural residents of southern Ontario are advised of the potential for brush or trash fires getting out of control particularly over the next few weeks, says Ministry of Natural Resources. Hazardous conditions exist from just after the snow melts until the new grasses and foliage have begun to grow.

Ninety per cent of all spring wildfires or unplanned fires are caused by people attempting to burn debris. The results of a wildfire may be the loss of highly valued homes, barns, cottages, tree plantations, or Crown forests.

You can greatly reduce the potential for wildfires by disposing of all rubbish and debris at an authorized disposal site where possible.

When burning is done, the following precautions must be taken to ensure it is done safely:

- * Remember to burn only during the cooler hours of early morning or evening.
- * Never burn on a dry day or windy day.

- * Always have some fire fighting equipment such as a shovel or water nearby.
- * Never leave a fire until it is "DEAD OUT".

- * Be aware of local bylaws and regulations regarding debris burning.
- * A fire permit is required.

Another safe burning practice would be to burn debris in a fire proof, enclosed container located on bare mineral soil or rock and at least five metres from any flammable material.

Should a wildfire occur always report it immediately to the nearest Fire Department or Ministry of Natural Resources office. The following fire information should be reported:

- * location of fire (township, lot, concession),
- * any high-valued property threatened (buildings etc.);

- * approximate size of fire now;

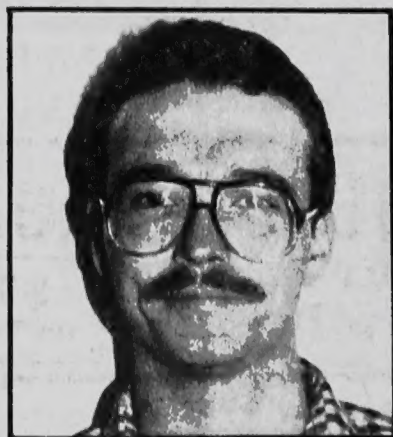

- * any water sources nearby (streams, lakes etc.)

- * What is the easiest access to the fire.

It is important to leave your name and phone number in case additional information is required.

Preventing wildfires is mostly common sense.

Man charged with dangerous driving

A Sudbury man has been charged with dangerous driving and two counts of leaving the scene of an accident following an incident Thursday night.

According to police, 35 year old Rodney McCormick was visiting the Wilberforce area when he left and began to drive toward Haliburton Village. The police received a number of calls that a vehicle was seen on Highway 121 being driven in an erratic manner.

The vehicle sideswiped two cars causing extensive damage and injuring a passenger in one of the cars. The driver of the second car to be hit, followed the other vehicle and managed to stop the driver near the high school. Police arrived a short time later and apprehended the driver.

According to the police,

there was no indication of the use of alcohol by the accused.

The investigation is continuing.

Children injured

Two youngsters were treated at Minden Hospital following a single vehicle accident April 8 on County Road One, south of Highway 121.

The pair were hurt when a vehicle driven by 24 year old Michael Rae of Haliburton left the road and struck a rock face.

The driver has been charged with driving a vehicle while crowded.

Vehicle taken

A pair of young offenders have been charged with theft over $1000 and possession of stolen property after a pick-up truck was stolen from Haliburton Village

March 14. The names of those charged have not been released as their identity is protected under the Young Offenders Act.

Man jailed

A Brighton man, 32 year old George Lamb, has been sentenced to five years in jail after being found guilty of assaulting his wife. The incident occurred May 17 of last year at a cottage on Koshlong Lake, where the family was vacationing.

Sign damaged

The notice board located adjacent to the Minden Post Office was damaged recently. The plexi-glass front panel of the sign was broken.

According to the police, the damage was the result of a disagreement between friends.

Charged with wilful damage is 20 year old Mark Chapman of Markham. The accused is scheduled to appear in Minden Provincial Court June 3.

Outdoorsman of the year chosen

An Ontario conservationist has been named the 1987 Canadian Outdoorsman of the year by the Canadian Wildlife Federation (CWF) and the Olin Corporation, sponsors of the country-wide program.

Each year, conservation associations across Canada are invited to send information on deserving candidates to the Canadian Wildlife Federation for judging. The winner receives a specially engraved Winchester firearm and a framed commemorative scroll.

The 1987 winner, Mr. Rick Morgan of Peterborough, Ontario Executive Vice president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, was chosen for both his professional and volunteer conservation activities. In presenting the award, the CWF's Lloyd Libke stated, "Rick Morgan has an incredible list of achievements in the conservation field."

Morgan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Morgan of Kinmount.

Based on guidance from his parents and family, Mr. Morgan's interest in conservation began at a very early age. Even as a teenager he was active in several conservation groups. Today, he is a member of even more. Mr. Morgan is a practising conservationist who spends both his time and money to make the world a better place for fish and wildlife. He has erected bluebird and wood duck nesting boxes, purchased and improve wildlife habitat and spent much of his personal time motivating others about the intrinsic values of conservation.

Professionally, he played a major role in the very successful reintroduction of wild turkeys and conceived, created and produced the Adopt-A-School "Wildlife and Man...Do we Help or Harm?" program, which is teaching many young Canadians to care for wildlife. He was the catalyst that succeeded in taking members' requests for an anti-litter campaign and turning them into the current annual "Pitch-In Week" campaign. Mr. Morgan has been active in the OFAH Junior Conservation Schools and created Junior Fishing weekends. He has been involved in the battle against acid rain for over a decade.

Rick Morgan is in constant demand as a public speaker for conservation and has addressed meetings and media across Canada. He received his "Canadian Outdoorsman of the Year" award at the annual meeting of the Canadian Wildlife Federation in Quebec City.

Survey finds drunk drivers well over limit

A second Ontario Provincial Police survey of impaired drivers has revealed disturbing new information about drinking and driving on Ontario roadways.

"We are concerned about the degree of intoxication of impaired drivers in Ontario," said Ontario Provincial Police Commissioner Archie Ferguson. "Our officers find the average impaired driver has consumed the equivalent of eight bottles of beer. Compare this to the legal limit of intoxication which the average person reaches after three or four bottles of beer and it's apparent that the drinking driver is a deadly risk to himself and others on our provincial highways," he added.

A second unexpected finding revealed that upwards of one third of intoxicated drivers are repeat offenders.

"Some drivers don't seem to learn that drinking and driving is a serious offence with deadly consequences which will not be tolerated in this province," said Ferguson.

This survey, the second of three OPP surveys, was conducted July 25 to August 4, 1986. Information for the first survey was taken December 20, 1985 to January 2, 1986.

The results of this survey support the findings of the earlier survey which developed the following profile of a typical impaired driver:

Single, employed, male and under the age of 30 (25 percent of the survey total). Generally this person consumed about eight bottles of beer on average at a licenced premise or a friend's residence and drove his car a short distance prior to apprehension (a distance that was usually within 5 kilometres of his home).

Other observations

- Party hosts continue to let their guests drive away from their homes in a drunken condition. Younger hosts are the least likely to insure their guests are in a fit condition to drive;

- The survey indicated that Northern Ontario has a rate of impaired driving three times that of southern Ontario.

A comparison of the two surveys also shows that intoxicated drivers were impaired to the same degree, regardless of the season.

"This tells us that while intensive enforcement programs such as R.I.D.E. can cut down on the overall number of impaired drivers, it has no effect on the degree of impairment," said Ferguson.

"The results of the two surveys are having an effect on how the OPP enforces drinking and driving laws across Ontario. The OPP feels having a better concept of who to look for will allow officers to apprehend more drinking drivers.

The results of a third survey conducted during the last Christmas holiday season should be available by May.

"I believe that we are the first police department to conduct this type of scientific study in-house," said Ferguson.

"We put a great deal of trust in our findings because of the accuracy of our data. We surveyed all the drivers who were charged with impaired driving rather than taking a smaller representative number. In total approximately 1,200 impaired drivers were surveyed," he added.

Soccer team begins fifth season as tournament prepared by Jim Milne

The Dixie Lee soccer team began their fifth season of play in the Muskoka District Soccer League with an indoor tournament in Bala Saturday April 11.

They began strongly with a 1-0 win over Orillia City. Hans Walter scored, assisted by Joe Mancuso.

In the second game, Parry Sound scored quickly but was unable to put another ball past Paul Vuksic in the Haliburton goal. With only three minutes left in the game, Jim Thompson tied the score at 1-1 for Dixie Lee. With 30 seconds left, an unusual dispute erupted when Parry Sound claimed a goal from a shot which the referee later decided had gone off the post.

Dixie Lee then needed a win or a tie to advance to the final round, but they fell 4-0 to Bracebridge Centennials. Three goals were scored on 4 penalty kicks taken by Bracebridge after defenders intruded in the goal area.

Outdoor play will begin on Sunday, May 10 when Dixie Lee will play the Huntsville Seniors at the German/Canadian Club.

The league will have nine teams this with the addition of a Huntsville Junior team. The first outdoor practice will be on Sunday, April 26 at 4:00 p.m. at the Haliburton High School field.

An indoor tournament is planned for Saturday April 25 in Bracebridge and an outdoor tournament on Saturday, May 22 in Toronto.

Voices of HHSS

Hi! This week we would like to inform our readers of an important new organization within the High School. This is the S.A.D.D. chapter (Students against driving drunk).

This group was formed by students voluntarily responding to the request of Mr. Lerpiniere to inform the students of the county that we're trying to cut down on this problem. We hope to gain full support from the school and county and lose our title of Haliburton County being the worst in drunk driving in the province of Ontario.

Well, now out of the heavy thoughts into the sweaty thoughts.

The badminton team went to Cobourg to compete in the COSSA championship and came in first for the first time! Now they will progress on to the Ontario finals. Congratulations to all who participated.

Tennis tryouts are continuing this week and is open to old and new players.

The track and field meet for our school is on Thursday, April 23 and it would be nice to have a large turn out of competitors. The week after this, on Thursday April 30, is Kawartha West Track and Field which HHSS is hosting.

The concert band will be part of an exchange in May from the 10th to the 13th.

The Prom was last Thursday and great thanks goes to all who made that night special, especially the Student Council.

Well, we hope everyone had a safe and happy Easter. Misti Campbell, Katy Beach, Heather Donaldson and Dianne Garbutt.

HACLD meeting

Opening the lines of communication between the parent and the school will be the topic of a meeting of the Haliburton Association For Children with Learning Disabilities (HACLD) planned for this Tuesday evening.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be Eva Nichols, the provincial director of the Ontario association. Her address will deal with how to assess your child's progress in school, how the parent can assist in that progress and how to discuss the problems, if any exist, with educational authorities.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the J.D. Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton. The meeting will take place in the library. Supervised child care will be provided and refreshments will be served.

For more information, call 457-2143.

Resort owner finds Nigeria a land of contrasts

After spending a month in Nigeria on a Rotary Group Study Exchange program, Curtis Eastmure has returned awed at both the poverty he found there and at the potential of the west African country for growth and development.

"There are a lot of very poor people - by our Western material standards - in Nigeria. Especially since the drop in the world oil market, because petroleum is one of their major resources."

During the oil boom, Eastmure explains, Nigeria rode the crest of the wave and the government started spending money on development, on universities, government buildings, roads. But when the price of oil dropped back, the building stopped.

"Many parts of the country now look like one big construction site." He shows a photograph of a university half-finished and almost obscured by the jungle that has grown back.

Asked what most impressed him about Nigeria, Eastmure doesn't hesitate. "The people. The country has over 100 million people and they're industrious and they want to improve their lives."

He explains that a corrupt civilian government was recently deposed by the military and the country is gradually trying to find its feet.

To keep the money in the country, the government has just devalued the Naira, the national currency. Though buying foreign currency isn't encouraged, it is permitted in a limited way.

"They're trying to encourage foreign investment," he says, "but to stop the country from being taken over by multinationals, the government has made it law that all businesses must be at least 50 per cent Nigerian-owned."

Before replying to a newspaper ad last summer asking for applicants for the Rotary exchange program, Eastmure knew very little about Nigeria. Along with the five other members of the exchange, Eastmure did what he could to find out about his destination before leaving home, but found little in-depth information. "As it turned out, even the Canadian Government didn't know that much."

The purpose of the visit was to promote understanding between the peoples of Nigeria and Canada. Called group study exchange, it is run regularly by the Rotary clubs of participating countries and is open to all business people and professionals who aren't members of Rotary and who are under 35 years of age.

Eastmure explains that eventually he and his fellow tour members found out what they wanted about Nigeria, but they learned it from the families with whom they stayed.

He observes that there are likely very few North Americans who have had the chance to do what he did - to live with Nigerians in Nigeria.

"I stayed with about 10 different families, all Rotarians, and they showed me about their country. I was taken to factories and breweries and schools and on tours through the countryside."

"Because I'm in the

Finding water the old fashioned way

It was 56 years ago that Cecil Yearwood found that by holding a forked stick, a fork in each hand with his palms up, and walking back and forth over a piece of land, he could detect the presence of underground water veins.

"But I didn't believe it at first," says the retired Ontario Hydro superintendent. "I didn't go in for that sort of thing."

It didn't take Cecil long to realize that he did indeed have the ability to do "that sort of thing," and that people would pay for the services of a diviner.

Soon he was in demand and he found himself "witching" wells for people across Haliburton County and even in Victoria County. In the early 30's when he started he charged $2 to find water. Now it's a minimum fee of $20 if he has to drive, and other diviners still tell him he's nuts to ask so little.

By many accounts, Cecil became one of the best around. Not only could he tell people where to drill, he could tell them how deep to go.

That was a useful skill especially for clients who would have to pay drillers by the foot.

"I knew all the drillers' tricks. If I said there was water at 30 feet and at 50 feet the driller still hadn't hit it, I knew there was something wrong. Sometimes in the early days they'd block up the vein just so they could keep going."

"In that situation, I told them to lower a stick of dynamite on a string to where I figured the water was, and light the fuse. The water always came gushing out."

But Cecil admits there was one well he divined that came up dry.

Cecil Yearwood, 76, has been divining wells in Haliburton County for most of his life. Here he holds up his trusty divining stick.

"After they'd drilled past where I said the water was, I told the driller I wanted to take a look down the hole. He said it wasn't possible, but I did it by flashing a reflection of the sun down a into the hole with a mirror."

"And I saw that the drill has missed the vein because it had curved three feet. I said 'There's water down there - you're just not hitting it.'"

After all those years, Cecil has become practised at his art. He believes method is important, especially the way the stick is held ("always with the palms up") and he knows what kind of wood works best for him.

Some people, he explains, can find water with a couple of old coat hangers, and he's even aware of a man who can do it with a watch and a chain. But he prefers to stick with the traditional tools.

"Wild plum will do and so will willow, though it tends to break easily. But I like choke cherry or black cherry the best. It doesn't hurt your hands."

He says that is important because when a real diviner stands over an underground vein, "he can't stop the stick from being drawn downwards even if he wants to. It just pulls you and there's nothing you can do about it."

To demonstrate, Cecil takes a stick he keeps handy on his front porch and goes out into the back yard of his Minden home.

"This," he says, gesturing across the lawn, "is where a vein runs. I've been all across this place and I know where it curves and where it enters my land."

Taking his forked stick, he walks to where he says the vein is. As he approaches, the crotch of the stick is drawn downwards.

"See, even if I wanted to I couldn't bring it up." Cecil's face turns red with the apparent strain of fighting the stick.

"You either have the ability or you don't. If you don't then there's no way you can learn it."

Cecil admits there are some tricks to finding water. For instance, if there are cedar trees growing in the area, the water will likely be fairly close to the surface of the ground. "And you've always got to look at the lay of the land, see which way the valleys and ridges are running - that can be a good guide too."

The best water he says, is found in gravel or rock. "It's always cold and clear then, and that's the way you want it."

But you don't find water in just one place. "It's always coming from somewhere and going somewhere else. So the first thing I do when I'm witching is walk around the edge of the property to find the veins and then I follow them in."

The water is always under pressure, Cecil says - "That's how it moves." Sometimes the pressure is so great that when the driller hits the vein, it comes bubbling out in a torrent. He says that if it's done properly, someone will get a nice artesian well that will supply water to his home indefinitely, without a pump.

But where the drilling isn't done properly, Cecil has seen wells that wash out driveways and create swamps.

"You've just got to be careful with pressure."

Though he's well-versed in water divining, Cecil still doesn't know for sure how it is that he can sense water without even seeing it. Possibly, he thinks, it's his body's natural electricity detecting iron in the water.

"You often find iron pyrites around veins...I think that might have something to do with it."

He's not quite sure what the stick has to do with it. All he knows is that he couldn't find water without one.

But that is not a question that perplexes Cecil. He's been divining water a long time and he's made good use of his talent. Now at age 76, he isn't as energetic as he once was and he's thinking about giving it up. So the problem of how it is that the diviner divines isn't likely to be solved in the near future; at least not by Cecil Yearwood.

Committee will study post office

Harvie Andre, minister responsible for Canada Post has established a study team to consider whether Canadians should be able to go to an independent agency to voice their concerns about postal service and rates.

Unlike the users of other common utilities such as hydro and telephone services, Canada Post's customers have nowhere to go to voice their concerns except to their MPs, Mr. Andre said.

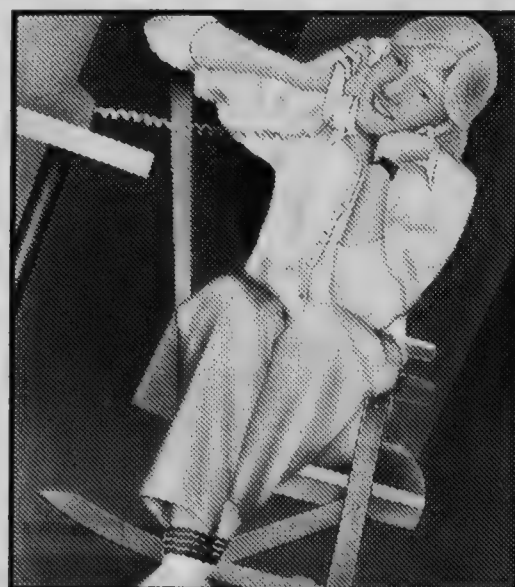

"So, despite the fact that it is now a Crown Corporation there is still pressure for political interference and meddling.

"The recent National Day of Protest, shows that the unions are still attempting to exert political pressure on the Government to achieve their goals, even though the Crown Corporation was created with the agreement of all parties and labour, to avoid this very thing," said Mr. Andre.

"One advantage of a regulator is that it would remove many of the issues of rates and service from the political arena to a pre-established, orderly evaluation process," he added.

Take care with gasoline

by Doreen Hawman

Are you tuning up your gasoline powered lawn mower and garden equipment, getting them ready for summer use? If so, you will be filling up gasoline containers.

The Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations recommends caution when filling gasoline containers. Did you know that you should never fill the container to the top? Gasoline expands when warmed and if room is not left for expansion, you risk a fire or explosion.

When the rated capacity mark is reached on the container, do not add more. Never fill or transfer gasoline from one container to another inside a car trunk or boat. Vapour released during filling will settle in a low spot and can be ignited by a small spark or flame. Fill your container in an open area where the vapour can escape.

Lawnmowers, chainsaws or other gas powered equip. should never be fuelled while still hot. Vapours could come in contact with the hot engine parts or the muffler and ignite. Never store gasoline in your home, workshop or basement, always store in an approved container in the garden or garden shed.

It is not advisable to use gasoline as a solvent for cleaning paint brushes or tools, this can also create enough vapour in a room to be ignited by a spark from an electric light switch or a furnace pilot light. By using caution when handling and storing gasoline you will avoid a serious accident.

Council sets land swap terms

If Larry Van Lieshout accepts Stanhope council's current offer in exchange severance of his lot, the local developer and real estate agent won't be permitted to tap into the spring council is asking for.

Recently Van Lieshout applied to sever his 80 acre property north of Highway 118 at the southeast end of Maple Lake. In exchange for the severance, council asked for one of the lots created, a seven-acre property on which is located a spring.

To sweeten the deal, council offered Van Lieshout a small parcel of township land on the Norley Road.

But Van Lieshout has asked for the right to tap into the spring. At the March 11 council meeting, he said that as well as the Norley Road property, he also wanted to use the spring to supply water for two houses he plans to build on lots on either side of the spring property.

At that meeting, councillor Jock Mavor argued that Van Lieshout should be given the right to use the spring, because, Mavor said, the amount of water drawn would have little effect on the flow of the spring.

However, at last Wednesday's meeting, council agreed that Van Lieshout would not be permitted to tap into the spring.

After the meeting Van Lieshout said in an interview that he was not upset by council's latest decision but that he would have to think about it before giving his answer.

Glamorgan gets planning grant

A community planning grant of $8,977 has been awarded to the Township of Glamorgan, Tourism and Recreation Minister John Eakins, the MPP for Victoria-Haliburton announced recently.

Speaking on behalf of Municipal Affairs Minister Bernard Grandmaitre, Mr. Eakins said the grant will be used by the township to update its zoning by-law.

Community planning grants from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs are designed to encourage municipalities to resolve land use planning issues to reflect municipal and economic priorities.

The grants may also be used for special studies to develop community improvement policies; to determine the feasibility of using data processing technology in the local planning process; and to assist in implementing the Planning Act.

Nigerians make the best of what's available tourism, business" - Eastmure owns Maple Sands Resort in Stanhope Township - "I was taken by one of my hosts to stay in his hotel. They were very generous to us."

He says one of the worst problems facing the country at present is poor organization. "It wasn't uncommon for the power in Lagos, the capital city, to go off for two or three hours once a week. This means that big companies and businesses, those who can afford it, have their own back-up generators. But for the vast majority without the luxury, it means you do without."

Eastmure marvels at the capacity of Nigerians to make the best of what they have. "One of the best ways of understanding the country is to learn about the Biafran civil war that broke out in the late 60's. One of the districts in Nigeria -

Biafra - wanted to gain independence. To defeat the secessionists, national forces blockaded Biafra to prevent any supplies getting in, especially guns and ammunition.

"But that didn't stop the Biafrans. In their own backyards they discovered that palm wine would work as a good substitute for hydraulic fluid; they built tanks out of old jeeps; and they learned to make a kind of primitive but effective missile that proved devastating to the nationalist forces."

Clearly, Nigerians have an enormous capacity for improvisation and hard work, says Eastmure, but against them is the fact that the country is made up of over 260 different tribes. "In fact, that was the cause of the Biafran War. The people of that part of the country were predominantly of the Ibo tribe. They didn't want to be ruled by other tribes."

Eastmure explains that the tribal system was once the mainstay of African society. "Before the Europeans came to conquer and exploit the continent, Africans lived in a well developed, ordered society. But the Europeans destroyed all that. They came in and said: this is how you will run your society, instructing them on European government and law."

The result, he says, is that Africans live in two worlds, neither of which functions properly.

"In ten years, it's possible that Nigeria will be swallowed up with another civil war the way things are going. But it's equally likely that the country will have succeeded in developing its resources and arriving at a more stable government."

If Nigeria does succeed in avoiding another war, it'll be in large part because of the personal qualities of the people, Eastmure says. "Their generosity," he says, was enormous. They took us into their families, they gave us gifts and they did their best to to explain their country.

"Sometimes they would take us to their home villages. Most Nigerians you meet in the big cities come from small rural villages and when you ask them where they're from, they'll tell you the name of their village."

Eastmure shows another photograph of a traditional African village, with mud huts and colourfully dressed people.

"Nigerians are generally happy people. Because it's tropical, there isn't the same necessity as there is in Canada to have a well insulated house stocked with all the modern conveniences. In Nigeria only shelter from the rain is essential. No one is starving, and food is relatively plentiful."

So despite the drawbacks, Nigerians, Eastmure believes, are not badly off. Like many developing countries, Nigeria is a land of extremes, of great wealth side by side with terrible poverty, of great ugliness and of great beauty.

He's glad he went and grateful to his wife for letting him go and to Rotary International for giving him the opportunity. Over the next few weeks, he'll be travelling to schools and club meetings in southern Ontario explaining about the trip and what it meant to him.

Canada to host meeting on toxic chemicals

- by Bill Scott, MP -

On March 19, 1987 Environment Minister Tom McMillan announced that Canada will host, in the fall of 1987, a meeting of experts to develop an international action plan for testing and evaluating existing toxic chemicals.

Canada made the offer to host this meeting during a two-day High Level Meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Chemicals Group in Paris. Participants in the High Level meeting recommended that the OECD adopt an act which would commit member countries to share information and strengthen their national programs to identify, assess and control existing toxic chemicals.

The meeting represented an important step in Canada's toxic chemical management strategy, particularly in the context of the Environmental Protection Act, which will be reintroduced later this spring.

Only a small fraction of the 100,000 chemicals in global use today have been properly identified and controlled. The total market for these products is worth over $500 billion.

The meeting also enabled participants to identify the following priorities: prevention and emergency planning; the reduction of the use of animals in testing; and the adoption of a cradle-to-grave approach for the management of toxic chemicals.

Canada's initiative to host the meeting of experts demonstrates the advanced thinking of our policies in this area, as well as Canada's role as an international leader in environmental matters.

4 million trees and growing submitted

Here we go into our twelfth year of the Trees for Canada program. Over 4 million trees have been planted in Ontario along by more than thirty thousand boys.

Locally, the 1st Minden boy scouts have planted nearly 30,000 trees on various municipal properties and private lands, creating windbreaks, providing shelter for birds and wildlife and reclaiming waste land.

In addition to the funds realized, the boys gain a greater appreciation for the environment and a better understanding of the need for the wise use of our resources.

World-wide immunization program

The Canadian Public Health Association (CPHA) and the Canadian Rotary Committee for International Development (CRCID) have entered into a partnership to help immunize the children of the world. Supported by the Canadian International Development Agency, CPHA has allocated $1,691,777 (US $1,235,000) to CRCID for use in Rotary International's PolioPlus immunization projects in nine developing countries.

Rotary clubs in Minden and Haliburton are involved in this fund raising drive.

The funds, to be administered through the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International, will be used in Burundi, Comoros, Congo, Ghana, Haiti, Ivory Coast, Mauritius, Nigeria and Zambia.

Through its PolioPlus Program, Rotary has pledged to promote and assist polio immunization of all children in developing nations worldwide and to raise US $120 million to fund this effort.

Chairman of Canada's PolioPlus Committee, Gerald R. Wooll, of St. Catharines, expressed appreciation on behalf of the more than 26,000 Rotarians for CPHA's generous contribution to the international fundraising effort.

"The cooperative efforts of the public and private sectors, in Canada and around the world, are essential to the success of Universal Child Immunization. Working together, we can defeat those diseases which still kill 3.5 million children in developing countries every year."

Both Rotary and CPHA share the World Health Organization's (WHO) commitment to Universal Child Immunization by 1990. Through its PolioPlus Program, Rotary works with WHO, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), and appropriate health authorities to assist national expanded programs on immunization.

To date, the Rotary Foundation has approved US $37.4 million for accelerated immunization efforts in 42 nations to protect more than 240 million children.

The world's first and most international service club association, Rotary is an organization of business and professional men, united worldwide, who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations and help build good will and peace in the world. There are nearly 550 Rotary clubs in Canada.

Service agencies present workshop

by Donna Bailey
Executive Director

On April 8, in Peterborough, the Home Support Specialist group, of which I am a committee member, presented to all the agencies in the area serviced by the Peterborough office of the Ministry of Community and Social Services a one day workshop at the Holiday Inn.

Approximately 75 persons including Executive Directors, Board members attended and participated in this workshop entitled "Staff Board Relations". Our presenters were from United Ways' Volunteer Leadership Development Program. This workshop dealt with the roles, responsibilities, inter-relationships plus recruitment, selection, development and evaluation of personnel.

Following a delicious buffet, three concurrent workshops were held: Board Staff relations (2 agencies presented their viewpoint), Management by Objectives (Nancy Diamond in place of our ailing Bob Hollobon) and Support Services for Persons with Cognitive Impairment and Care for the Caregivers (Margaret Hawkins).

Two new committees were formed. One to work on developing program standards and one of the issue of transportation (of which I am chairperson).

The four members from Haliburton County Home Support Services, Adele Barnes, Bruce Armstrong, Katherine Hodgson McMahon and myself, felt the day was very valuable in terms of our professional development.

If you require any services of Home Support please call our office at 457-2941 any weekday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

This week, the article will focus on motor vehicle accidents in Ontario, who is killed and why? The most recent statistics available to police provided by the Ministry of Transportation and Communication is for 1985.

The Accidents - 1985

In the four counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland and Haliburton (including City and Towns) there were 5,029 motor vehicle accidents. By severity, 52 accidents resulted in fatal injuries to 63 people; 1,960 accidents involved personal injury leaving 3,106 people injured, and 3,017 accidents occurred in which only damage to vehicles resulted.

While accidents in these four counties amounted to only 2.6% of the provincial total for total numbers of accidents and number of persons injured, our fatality rate is 5% of the total in the province.

A costly reminder

During seat belt awareness month, the Ontario Provincial Police throughout this district have been conducting special campaigns to ensure that seat belts are being used by the motoring public.

Part of that campaign includes laying charges where drivers and passengers are found not to be wearing the restraining devices.

During the past week, the members of the Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have laid 17 charges of failing to wear seat belts.

It has been proven that seat belts do save lives...using them could also save you the cost of a fine.

Ontario there were 502 drivers and 333 passengers killed. In fatalities, with drivers killed, 50.7% of those drivers were not wearing seat belts and in a further 18.5% of the accidents seat belt use remains unknown.

In fatal accidents with passengers killed, 51.9% of the victims were not wearing seat belts with a further 15% of the victims' use of seat belts being unknown.

The question to be answered is "Would any of these fatal accidents have been reduced through the use of seat belts?"

From an enforcement perspective, the Ontario Provincial Police are convinced that strict but fair seat belt enforcement will reduce the fatality rate. Enforcement will also reduce the injury rate. Consequently, the "April Seat Belt Awareness Program" philosophy is based on both education and increased enforcement.

In the first week of operation, a total of 295 motorists were charged with seat belt violations in the Peterborough District. It is hoped through this article and the three preceding releases that members of the public who both drive and ride in vehicles will voluntarily comply with seat belt legislation.

Seat belts can save lives only if they are used. You can make the difference in reducing injuries to both yourself and your passengers - insist on everyone buckling up.

Next week's article: Why people refuse to wear seat belts.

Minden Women's Institute

The reading of the verse, "Springtime" by vice president Mrs. C. Wilson, began the April 15 meeting of Minden Women's Institute. Twenty members answered the roll call and one guest was welcomed.

The yearly reports were read by Mrs. L. Cox, Mrs. Kernohan and Mrs. Moore and honoraria are to be paid for the first two. A craft for sale at F.W.I.O. Convention in North Bay, a cushion made by Mrs. A. Taylor will be sent. Final plans were made for District Meeting at United Church on May 12. Mrs. D. Cox and Mrs. Kernohan reported on leadership day they attended and date set for our course will be May 6 from 11:30 and anyone may attend. This is on Short Order meals and is at the Library-Cultural Centre and all have to bring a lunch.

The fireproof box containing our Branch Minute Books is to go into the Museum. Voting delegates at District Annual are Mrs. Lacey, Mrs. J. Cox, Mrs. Kernohan, Mrs. C. Wilson and alternate Mrs. Sears. Collections for Pennies for Friendship and Card Fund were taken.

Mrs. Lyman Cox, past president, presided at the election of officers with Mrs. Kernohan taking notes. A new officer, i.e., branch coordinator who collects and condenses convenor's reports for this branch and sends these on to District is Mrs. D. Cox. Other change was convenor of agriculture and Canadian Industries Mrs. D. Berry.

Following this installation of officers, the meeting adjourned. The Tweedsmuir Books were on display and the curator welcomes any family trees or information to add to this. On the draw for the three gifts, winners were Evelyn Cox, Verla Wilson and Jeanne Sears.

Mrs. Wilson read the program for next meeting of May 20 at this same location at 2 p.m. with all ladies welcome. We then enjoyed a snack and a cup of tea. Jeanne Sears, P.R.O.

Branch 129 news

by Gerald Irish

Your branch is, as usual, a beehive of activity.

Monday night is Senior's darts, Tuesday night Euchre, Wednesday night mixed darts, Thursday night Ladies' shuffleboard. Of course, Saturday night entertainment continues.

Your entertainment chairman has booked new acts and continued with your favourite regular groups.

Work is also underway on Bluegrass '87 and the District Drumhead in September when over 50 branches will be visiting the beautiful Highlands.

Last Saturday, a team from your legion entered the interbranch tournament in Kinmount and returned home as team champions. Congratulations to the team of Dennis Baker, Steve Ricketts, Barry Robertson and Geordie Vincent. This is indeed an honour for Branch 129.

HONDA LAWNMOWERS

WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE BOUGHT A HONDA.

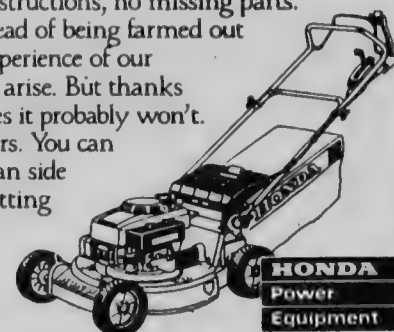

A bargain lawnmower is no bargain if it takes you hours to assemble and you've still got some parts left over. That's why every Honda lawnmower that we sell comes preassembled. Not in a box. No garbled instructions, no missing parts.

We service Honda lawnmowers too. So instead of being farmed out to a fix-it shop, your Honda gets the hands-on experience of our professionally-trained mechanics should the need arise. But thanks to Honda reliability and low maintenance features it probably won't.

Variety is another key to Honda lawnmowers. You can choose from push or self-propelled models. You can side bag or rear bag or not bag at all. You can have cutting widths from 17" to 21".

This summer, you can tear your hair out with another lawnmower. Or you can cut the grass with a Honda.

IN MEMORIAM

STEVENSON, Lola. In loving memory of a dear daughter, sister and aunt, who passed away one year ago, April 23, 1986.

We watched you suffer, we
We watched you sigh,
But all we could do
Was just stand by,
When the time came,
We suffered too,
For you never deserved
What you went through.
God took your hand
We had to part
He eased your pain,
But broke our hearts.
If you could have spoken
Before you died
These are the words
You would have replied.

"This life for me
Has truly passed,
I loved you all
To the very last,
Weep not for me,
But courage take,
And love one another
For my sake,
Don't cry for me,
I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again
someday".

Too dearly loved to ever be forgotten.

Love Mom, Judy, Garwood
and family

SHELLY, Harvey William. In loving memory of Harvey William Shelly who passed away April 20, 1986.

Times will come and go
And changes we will make
But in our hearts you will remain.
Memories are too strong to die. We will always think of the good times and remember the joy and laughter. So even though you are gone, your memories will never fade.

Always to be remembered
by Lester, Larry, Lyle,
